

Across the Country in the DA20

A Few Photos from the Journey...

London Airport from right downwind.

Gwen in cockpit on checkout flight. Pete used this Kodak moment to distract me on short final. I must have passed the test, since I landed rather nicely on that one, if I do say so myself. :)

Downtown Chicago from 2300 feet and about two miles away. That was an awesome flight up the west shore of Lake Michigan.

The cockpit as I pass downtown Chicago. Okay, so I was 2350. I had to stay at or below 2500 to avoid their airspace. I wanted a cushion. Note the airspeed. I was still fortunate to have tailwinds.
